Useful Resources

Posted on 14 September 2011

We hope these resources will help individuals and organisations in Australia and overseas interested in the field of measuring progress and wellbeing.

Community Indicators Online

this site, hosted by the University of Adelaide, aims to serve as a clearinghouse for community indicator development initiatives. It contains guide to developing frameworks, case studies and links to different data sources.

Wikiprogress

this site is a global platform for sharing information in order to evaluate societal progress. It is a place to find information and statistics to facilitate the exchange of ideas, initiatives and knowledge on measuring the progress of societies.

UNPAN

United Nations Public Administration Network is designed to help countries, especially developing countries and countries in economic transition, to respond to the challenges that governments face in bridging the digital divide between the 'haves and have-nots' and to achieve their development goals. Once useful resource on this site is the toolkit for social audits.

Australian Community Indicators Network

ACIN aims to assist people using or developing community indicators to share ideas and information, and to foster collaboration.

Measuring Wellbeing: Frameworks for Australian Social Statistics

A textbook concerning the conceptual organisation of social statistics in the ABS.

National Statistical Service

The National Statistical Service aims to develop and improve a statistical system that ensures providers and users of statistics have the confidence to trust the statistics produced. It has tools such as the Handbook and Sample Size Calculator.
